Variable remuneration refers to any discretionary bonus which is based on performance, both of the organisation and individual. When assessing individual performance to determine the amount of variable remuneration to be paid to an individual, the financial as well as non-financial criteria are considered. Variable pay is linked to, and varies in line with, the overall performance. Performance is measured on a quantitative and qualitative basis to ensure a balanced assessment of performance is made.

Remuneration adjustment

ARCAS will ensure that the fixed and variable components of total remuneration are appropriately balanced, and the fixed component represents a sufficiently high proportion of the total remuneration to enable the operation of a fully flexible policy on variable remuneration, including the possibility of paying no variable remuneration component. This approach ensures that performance is assessed at a firm, individual and business unit level.

All variable remuneration is subject to adjustment for current and future risks.

The RemCo seeks input from the Group Audit and Risk Committee and the Global Head of Risk and Compliance when determining whether any performance or risk adjustments are required particularly in relation to the application of risk adjustment to the bonus pool.

The Remuneration Policy provides a framework for the process, governance and standards relevant for making decisions in relation to individual adjustments, including malus and clawback.
